1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 I. INTRODUCTION

3 Over the course of seven years, defendant JONATHAN TODD SCHWARTZ 4 ("defendant") embezzled over $7 million from his clients while 5 simultaneously assuring them he was properly managing their financial 6 affairs and looking out for their interests. He falsified records 7 and forged at least one client's signature to conceal these thefts, 8 and lied to his clients and his firm when he was confronted about the 9 missing funds. Defendant's conduct harmed not only the clients whose 10 money he stole, but also the business management firm of which he was 11 a partner, whose insurance policies did not cover all the losses 12 defendant caused and, perhaps even more importantly, whose otherwise 13 stellar reputation was damaged by defendant's criminal acts resulting 14 in the loss of current business and future business. The harms 15 caused by defendant's conduct do not stop there: As a result of the 16 losses that defendant's conduct caused his former firm, the firm had 17 to lay off many employees who have now lost their own livelihoods, 18 drastically impacting their own lives and the lives of their 19 families.

20 On February 2, 2017, defendant pled guilty pursuant to a plea 21 agreement to an information charging him with a violation of the wire 22 fraud statute, 18 U.S.C. § 1343, arising from this embezzlement 23 scheme, and failing to report the stolen money on his tax returns, in 24 violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7206(1). (CR 15.)¹

26 27 ¹ "CR" refers to the Clerk's Record of Proceedings and is 28 followed by the applicable docket number. "Exh." refers to the exhibits attached to the Declaration of Ranee A. Katzenstein ("Katzenstein Dec.").

1 In the Presentence Report ("PSR"), the Probation Officer found 2 that defendant's total post-acceptance offense level is 26, based on 3 the offense levels for each count to which the parties stipulated in 4 the plea agreement and application of the multi-count adjustment 5 under USSG §§ 3D1.1-3D1.4. Defendant is in Criminal History Category 6 I. At offense level 26, defendant's advisory sentencing guidelines 7 range is 63 to 78 months.

8 Defendant's crimes were extremely harmful, egregious, long-9 standing, and motivated by selfish greed. In mitigation, defendant 10 has admitted his wrongful conduct and accepted responsibility for the 11 harm he caused. The government respectfully submits that the 12 aggravating and mitigating factors in this case, discussed more fully 13 below, are appropriately balanced by a sentence of 63 months in 14 custody, the low end of the applicable advisory guidelines range, 15 followed by three years of supervised release; in addition, defendant 16 should be ordered to pay restitution in the total amount of 17 $8,657,268 to the individual victims and GSO Business Management, 18 LLC, as set forth in the PSR.

19 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

20 A. Defendant's Admissions (factual basis for pleas)

21 Defendant admitted the following facts in his written plea 22 agreement and under oath in open court at the hearing on his change 23 of plea:

24 Background

25 At all times relevant to the Information:

26 Defendant was a resident of Agoura Hills, within the 27 Central District of California. Defendant was a member of GSO
28 Business Management, LLC ("GSO"), a business management firm based in Sherman Oaks, California. GSO provided financial guidance, including managing bank accounts, providing accounts

1 payable services on clients' behalf, and preparing short term 2 and long term budgets.

3 The Scheme to Defraud

4 Beginning by at least March 2009 and continuing until at 5 least May 2016, defendant executed a scheme to defraud clients
6 of GSO by taking for his own use monies belonging to the clients 7 without the knowledge or authorization of the clients; 8 falsifying records of the clients' accounts to conceal the 9 unauthorized takings; forging the signature of one client on GSO receipts, thereby creating the false appearance that cash withdrawn from the client's account had been delivered to the client; and, when confronted, lying about what he had done with the missing cash.

10 Specifically, between March 2009 and April 2010, defendant
11 withdrew cash belonging to Client No. 1 without the knowledge, 12 consent, or authorization of Client No. 1. Defendant withdrew 13 the cash, totaling $1,009,000, in 28 unauthorized transactions 14 at City National Bank. Client No. 1 was rebuilding his home during this period and defendant falsely coded a number of the unauthorized cash withdrawals as home renovations on the accounting records GSO maintained for Client No. 1.

15 Between at least May 2010 and January 2014, defendant
16 withdrew cash belonging to Client No. 2 without the knowledge, 17 consent, or authorization of Client No. 2. Defendant withdrew 18 the cash, totaling approximately $4.8 million, in 114 19 unauthorized transactions. Defendant falsely coded the 20 unauthorized cash withdrawals as "sundry/personal expenses" on 21 the accounting records GSO maintained for Client No. 2. When 22 confronted about the missing funds, defendant falsely stated 23 that the money was an "investment" in illegal marijuana "grow" businesses and that he and other GSO employees, none of whom defendant could identify, had delivered the cash to people, also unidentified, associated with the marijuana businesses.
Although defendant claimed that Client No. 2 had signed "meeting packets" acknowledging the cash transactions, no such signed meeting packets in fact exist.

24 Between September and December 2014, and again in February 25 2016, defendant withdrew cash belonging to Client No. 3 without 26 the knowledge, consent, or authorization of Client No. 3.
27 Defendant withdrew the cash, totaling $737,500, in 10 28 unauthorized transactions. Defendant forged Client No. 3's signature on at least two cash receipts pertaining to transactions on November 25, 2014 (for $150,000) and December 16, 2014 (for $100,000).

1 Between October and November 2014, defendant withdrew cash 2 belonging to Client No. 4 without the knowledge, consent, or 3 authorization of Client No. 4. Defendant withdrew the cash, 4 totaling $122,500, in 4 unauthorized transactions.

5 In 2015, defendant obtained $500,000 from Client No. 5, 6 based on defendant's representation and promise that he would 7 invest Client No. 5's money on Client No. 5's behalf and would 8 provide the interest from the investment to Client No. 5.
9 Defendant did not invest Client No. 5's money as promised. In 10 2016, defendant returned $75,000 to Client No. 5 as "interest"; 11 misappropriated the remaining $425,000 of Client No. 5's money; 12 and, without Client No. 5's knowledge or consent, used it to pay 13 defendant's own expenses.

14 In March 2016, defendant obtained $100,000 belonging to 15 Client No. 6 in an unauthorized transaction. When confronted, 16 defendant promised to "take care of" the claim, but did not.

17 Use of the Wires

18 In furtherance of the fraudulent scheme, on or about 19 December 11, 2013, defendant caused a communication to be sent 20 via interstate wires, namely an e-mail from defendant's GSO e-21 mail account in California sent to City National Bank, in 22 California, via a Network Solutions, LLC, server located in 23 Jacksonville, Florida, approving an attached "Request For 24 Cash/Cashier's Check/Foreign Currency" for $97,500 in cash to be 25 withdrawn from the account of Client No. 2, which was submitted 26 by defendant and stated that defendant would pick up the cash at 27 the Beverly Hills Branch of the bank.

28 Subscription to a False Tax Return

 On or about October 15, 2013, defendant signed and submitted to the Internal Revenue Service a United States Individual Income Tax Return, Form 1040, for tax year 2012 on which he reported, on line 22, that he had total income of $626,228. At the time that defendant signed the return and submitted it to the IRS he knew that he had additional income for tax year 2012 of approximately $1,621,500 and knew that he had a legal duty to disclose this additional income to the IRS.

(Plea Agreement (Exhibit C: Factual Basis) (CR 6); for the Court's convenience, a copy of the factual basis is attached to the Katzenstein Dec. as Exh. A.)

1 B. The Offense Conduct

2 1. Overview

3 Defendant was a member of GSO Business Management, LLC ("GSO"), 4 a business management firm based in Sherman Oaks, California. GSO 5 provided financial guidance, including managing bank accounts, 6 providing accounts payable services on clients' behalf, and preparing 7 short term and long term budgets. (PSR ¶ 11.) Defendant embezzled 8 approximately $7.2 million from his GSO clients, and then failed to 9 report this income on his own tax returns. (PSR ¶¶ 20-21.)

10 Due to his position as his clients' business manager, defendant 11 had access to his clients' bank accounts for the purpose of paying 12 their bills and obtaining cash for them at their request. In fact, 13 defendant submitted requests to the bank for cash that were not 14 authorized by the clients, and had the bank deliver the cash to him 15 or picked the cash up from the bank himself. (E.g., Exh. B.)
16 Defendant was able to conceal the embezzlements because, per GSO 17 procedure, the bank statements were sent to GSO, not to the clients.
18 GSO prepared monthly statements for the clients based on a ledger of 19 expenses that GSO bookkeepers maintained. Defendant provided false 20 information to the bookkeepers and caused other, pertinent 21 information to be deleted from the monthly statements. (E.g., Exh.
22 C.) The concealment succeeded because (a) the clients trusted 23 defendant, whom they had hired specifically for the purpose of 24 protecting their assets; and (b) the clients were high net worth 25 individuals for whom the losses would not necessarily be immediately 26 noticeable.

1 2. Victims/Losses

2 Client No. 1: Between March 2009 and April 2010, defendant
3 withdrew $1,009,000 of Client No. 1's money in 28 unauthorized 4 transactions at City National Bank. (PSR ¶ 13.) Defendant concealed 5 these embezzlements by causing a number of these transactions to be 6 falsely entered into GSO's books as cash provided to the client to 7 pay for home renovations. (PSR ¶ 13.)

8 Client No. 2: Between May 2010 and January 2014, defendant
9 withdrew $4,800,000 of Client No. 2's money in 114 unauthorized 10 transactions. (PSR ¶ 14.) Defendant concealed these embezzlements 11 by causing a number of these transactions to be falsely entered into 12 GSO's books as cash provided to the client for sundry/personal 13 expenses. (Id.) When confronted, defendant attempted to lull Client 14 No. 2 by falsely claiming that the cash had been invested in a 15 marijuana business. (Id.) Defendant also falsely told Client No.
16 2's business manager that Client No. 2 had signed for the cash.
17 (Id.)

18 Client No. 3: Between September and December 2014, defendant
19 withdrew $737,500 of Client No. 3's money in 10 unauthorized 20 transactions. (PSR ¶ 15.) Defendant forged Client No. 3's signature 21 on at least two cash receipts in order to create the false pretense 22 that Client No. 3 had received the cash. (PSR ¶ 15; Exh. B at 5, 7.)

23 Client No. 4: Between October and November 2014, defendant
24 withdrew $122,500 of Client No. 4's money in 4 unauthorized
25 transactions. (PSR ¶ 16.)

26 Client No. 5: In 2015, defendant obtained $500,000 from Client 27 No. 5 based on the false promise that defendant would profitably 28 invest the money on Client No. 5's behalf. (PSR ¶ 17.) Defendant

1 did not invest the money and used $425,000 of it to pay his own
2 expenses. (Id.)

3 Client No. 6: In March 2016, defendant obtained $100,000 of 4 Client No. 6's money in an unauthorized transaction. (PSR ¶ 18.) 5 When confronted, defendant promised to "take care of" the claim, but 6 he did not. (Id.)

7 GSO: Defendant's crimes caused catastrophic financial harm to 8 GSO, including substantial financial losses (over $2 million paid by 9 GSO to reimburse defendant's victims for amounts not covered by GSO's 10 insurance policies and to pay out-of-pocket expenses for attorneys, 11 accountants, and other professionals to address the financial havoc 12 wreaked by defendant). (See Katzenstein Dec. ¶ 4, Exh. D; Letters 13 from Bernard Gudvi and Michael L. Oppenheim, attached hereto.)
14 Defendant's crimes also devastated GSO's reputation – a reputation 15 that Bernard Gudvi, GSO's founder, has spent over 30 years building.
16 (See Gudvi Letter attached hereto and other victim letters filed 17 under seal.) In this regard, the harm that defendant has caused has 18 been particularly acute because the business that GSO is engaged in 19 is so heavily dependent on the trust that must exist between business 20 managers like those at GSO and the clients whose money they 21 safeguard. (Id.) That trust was completely shattered when 22 defendant's betrayal of that trust was exposed. As a result, GSO 23 lost existing business and has seen sharp decreases in new business.
24 (Id.) And there is more: GSO has been forced to lay off 25 approximately one dozen employees as a result of the financial 26 downturn at the company caused by defendant's crimes, and each of 27 these employees and their families are now suffering from their loss 28 of wages and benefits. (Id.)

III. CONCURRENCE IN THE FINDINGS OF THE PRESENTENCE REPORT

The government concurs in the findings of the Presentence Report prepared by the Probation Office in this case and disclosed on March 30, 2017.

IV. GOVERNMENT'S POSITION RE SENTENCING

As explained in the following discussion, the government's recommendation that defendant be sentenced to 63 months in custody is based on an evaluation of the advisory sentencing guidelines and the other § 3553(a) factors.

A. Advisory Sentencing Guidelines

1. Stipulations of the Parties

Defendant and the government stipulated in the plea agreement that the following advisory sentencing guidelines apply:

Count 1: Wire Fraud (18 U.S.C. § 1343)

Base Offense Level:	7	USSG § 2B1.1(a)(1)
Loss between $3.5 and $9.5 million	+18	USSG § 2B1.1(b)(1)(J)
Abuse of Position of Trust	+2	USSG § 3B1.3

Count 2: Subscription to False Tax Return (26 U.S.C. § 7206(1))

Base Offense Level (tax loss over $1.5 million):	22	USSG §§ 2T1.1; 2T4.1(I)
Unreported Income from Criminal Activity	+2	USSG § 2T1.1(b)(1)

(Plea Agreement (CR 6) ¶ 18.) The parties reserved the right to argue that additional specific offense characteristics, adjustments, and departures under the Sentencing Guidelines are appropriate.

(Id.)

1 The government agreed to recommend that defendant's offense
 2 level be reduced by three levels for acceptance of responsibility 3 pursuant to U.S.S.G. § 3E1.1(a), (b) and does so recommend. (Id.
 4 ¶ 5(c).) The government also agreed to recommend that defendant be 5 sentenced to a term of imprisonment no higher than the low end of the 6 applicable Sentencing Guidelines range provided that the offense 7 level used by the Court to determine that range is 26 or higher and 8 provided that the Court does not depart downward in offense level or 9 criminal history category, and will so recommend. (Id. ¶ 5(e).)

10 2. Wire Fraud: The 18-level Enhancement for Loss Applies 11 Because the Loss was Greater than $3.5 Million

12 Defendant has admitted that he embezzled and misappropriated 13 client funds totaling approximately $7,194,000. He also caused over 14 $2 million in losses to GSO. (PSR ¶¶ 20, 119; see also Katzenstein 15 Dec. ¶ 4; Exh. D.) Client account records from GSO also establish 16 that defendant embezzled and misappropriated this amount.
 17 Accordingly, the Probation Officer correctly applied an 18-level 18 upward adjustment under U.S.S.G. § 2B1.1(b)(1)(J) because the loss 19 was greater than $3.5 million but not more than $9.5 million.
 20 (PSR ¶ 33.)

21 3. Wire Fraud: The Abuse of Position of Trust Enhancement 22 Applies Because Defendant Had Access To His Clients' Accounts By Virtue of Being Their Business Manager

23 The Probation Office properly applied a 2-level upward 24 adjustment because defendant's offense involved an abuse of a 25 position of trust. (PSR ¶¶ 35-36.) Section 3B1.3 of the guidelines 26 provides that "[i]f the defendant abused a position of public or 27 private trust . . . in a manner that significantly facilitated the 28 commission or concealment of the offense," a 2-level upward

1 adjustment applies. The commentary to this section explains that 2 "public or private trust" refers to a position "characterized by 3 professional or managerial discretion (i.e., substantial 4 discretionary judgment that is ordinarily given considerable 5 deference). Persons holding such positions ordinarily are subject to 6 significantly less supervision than employees whose responsibilities 7 are primarily non-discretionary in nature." USSG § 3B1.3, comment.
8 (n.1). For the adjustment to apply, the position of trust "must have 9 contributed in some significant way to facilitating the commission or 10 concealment of the offense (e.g., by making the detection of the 11 offense or the defendant's responsibility for the offense more 12 difficult)." Id.

13 Here, defendant was the business manager of the victim-clients 14 and, in that capacity, oversaw all financial aspects of their careers 15 and incomes, including collecting income and compensation on behalf 16 of the clients, maintaining and safeguarding the clients' bank and 17 investment accounts, providing accounts payable services on the 18 clients' behalf, preparing short term and long term budgets, and 19 managing the clients' investments. As their business manager, 20 defendant had access to the clients' financial accounts, books, and 21 records. That access made his offense possible. Moreover, as the 22 business manager, he could - and did - create false records that 23 concealed the cash draws by omitting them or documenting the 24 purported legitimate uses of the funds that he embezzled. (E.g., 25 Exh. C.) As such, his position enabled him to cover up the loss of 26 funds, thereby concealing his offense. See United States v.
27 Christiansen, 958 F.2d 285, 288 (9th Cir. 1992) (upholding 28 enhancement for credit union manager whose position allowed her access to large amounts of cash and made it possible to conceal the theft for extended period of time); United States v. Hendricks, 434 F. App'x. 812, 2011 WL 2749814 (11th Cir. 2011) (enhancement properly applied to business manager and accountant for nonprofit organization who stole funds from the organization; defendant enjoyed broad discretion in managing the organization's accounting and finances).

4. Subscription to False Tax Return: Tax Loss

The IRS-CI special agent's analysis of the records shows the following amounts of unreported income (based on defendant's unauthorized withdrawals from Client Accounts) for the following years:

Client	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	Total
No. 1	437,500 ²
No. 2	614,500	1,106,500	1,621,500	1,346,000	125,000
No. 3					712,500
No. 4					122,500
Total	1,052,000	1,106,500	1,621,500	1,346,000	960,000	6,086,000³

(See PSR ¶ 21.)

The IRS-CI special agent's calculation of the tax due and owing on this unreported income, using a tax rate of 28%, is:

2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	Total
294,500	309,820	454,020	376,880	268,800	1,704,080

² Defendant also took $571,500 in unauthorized withdrawals from Client No. 1 in 2009, resulting in the total loss of $1,009,000 sustained by Client No. 1.

³ This total unreported income figure does not include the additional amounts embezzled/misappropriated by defendant from Client No. 5 ($425,000) and Client No. 6 ($100,000) or the $571,500 embezzled from Client No. 1 in 2009.

1 (See id.) This tax loss results in a base offense level for the tax
2 count of 22. (PSR ¶ 39.)

3 5. Unreported Income from Criminal Activity

4 As described above, defendant's unreported income included more 5 than $10,000 from criminal activity, namely the embezzlement from 6 GSO's clients. Accordingly, the two-level enhancement under 7 Sentencing Guideline § 2T1.1(b)(1) applies. (PSR ¶ 40.)

8 6. A 2-Level Multiple-Count Adjustment Applies

9 In the plea agreement, the government reserved the right to 10 argue that an upward adjustment applies under the guidelines 11 applicable to determining the combined offense level for both counts 12 of conviction, USSG §§ 3D1.1-3D1.4 (the "Multiple Count Guidelines"), 13 and defendant reserved the right to argue that no adjustment applies 14 under the Multiple Count Guidelines. (Plea Agreement (CR 6) ¶ 18.)

15 The Probation Officer correctly found that a 2-level multiple-16 count adjustment applies pursuant to USSG § 3D1.1-3D1.4. (PSR ¶¶ 45-17 48.) Sentencing Guideline § 3D1.1 provides that when a defendant has 18 been convicted of more than one count, the court should: (1) group 19 the counts into distinct groups of closely related counts ("groups") 20 by applying USSG § 3D1.2's grouping rules; (2) determine the offense 21 level applicable to each group by applying the rules in USSG § 3D1.3; 22 and (3) determine the combined offense level applicable to all groups 23 by applying USSG § 3D1.4's rules.

24 Here, defendant has pled guilty to a wire fraud count and a 25 subscription to a false tax return count. The Ninth Circuit has 26 affirmed a sentencing court's determination that mail/wire fraud and 27 tax counts do not group because they involve different victims and 28

1 harms. United States v. Smith, 424 F.3d 992, 1015 (9th Cir. 2005) 2 (affirming district court's decision not to group tax counts with 3 mail and wire fraud counts because victim of the former was the 4 United States government whereas the victims of the latter were the 5 clients who had their money stolen by the defendants); United States 6 v. Bates, 166 F. App'x. 972, 973 (9th Cir. 2006) (unpublished) 7 (affirming district court's decision not to group tax-related 8 conspiracy count with money-laundering conspiracy counts because the 9 harms and victims were different). Accordingly, a multiple count 10 adjustment is appropriate. Because the offense levels for 11 defendant's offenses are 27 and 24, respectively, there are two units 12 under USSG § 3D1.4, resulting in an additional two levels for a pre-13 acceptance total offense level of 29.

14 It is true that the grouping guidelines provide that "[a]ll 15 counts involving substantially the same harm shall be grouped 16 together into a single Group." USSG § 3D1.2. Further, "[c]ounts 17 involve substantially the same harm within the meaning of this rule 18 . . . [w]hen one of the counts embodies conduct that is treated as a 19 specific offense characteristic in, or other adjustment to, the 20 guideline applicable to another of the counts." USSG § 3D1.2(c).
21 Here, the embezzlement charged in count one embodies conduct that is 22 treated as a specific offense characteristic of the tax offense 23 charged in count two; i.e., it is the basis for the enhancement under 24 USSG § 2T1.1(b)(1) pursuant to which two levels are added because 25 more than $10,000 of the unreported income for one year came from 26 criminal activity. Nonetheless, as explained below, grouping on this 27 basis should be rejected.

1 Eight appellate courts have explicitly rejected grouping based 2 on USSG § 3D1.2(c). For example, in United States v. Vucko, 473 F.3d 3 773 (7th Cir. 2007), Susan Vucko embezzled more than $700,000 from 4 her employer and failed to report the embezzled amount as income; she 5 pleaded guilty to wire fraud in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1343 and 6 filing a false tax return in violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7206(1). The 7 district court imposed concurrent sentences of two years' 8 imprisonment for each offense, and Vucko appealed, arguing that the 9 district court erred by failing to group the charges under USSG 10 § 3D1.2(c). The Seventh Circuit affirmed. First, the court held 11 that the "'specific offense characteristic' in the tax guideline is 12 too broad to require the conclusion that it encompasses wire fraud in 13 particular." The Court explained:

14 Wire fraud is just one of countless ways to obtain income 15 from criminal activity. To suggest that any criminal 16 offense that produces income is subsumed into the tax 17 guideline calculation with a two-level enhancement is to 18 create a category without limits. This is different from 19 possessing a gun during a bank offense, where precisely 20 that conduct is identified as a specific offense 21 characteristic, or obstruction of justice, which is a 22 specific adjustment under § 3C1.1. There is a distinction between saying that any underlying criminal act increases the offense level and that a specific underlying act increases the offense level. Furthermore, the Commentary indicates that the enhancement is not supposed to account for the underlying crime, but rather the presumption that officials will not be able to calculate the full extent of the ill-gotten gains that a defendant failed to report.⁴

23 ⁴ Application Note 3 defines the term "criminal activity" in 24 § 2T1.1 to mean "any conduct constituting a criminal offense under 25 federal, state, local, or foreign law." The Background Note explains 26 further that "[f]ailure to report criminally derived income is 27 included as a factor for deterrence purposes. Criminally derived 28 income is generally difficult to establish, so that the tax loss in such cases will tend to be substantially understated. An enhancement for offenders who violate the tax laws as part of a pattern of criminal activity from which they derive a substantial portion of their income also serves to implement the mandate of 28 U.S.C.

1 The purpose of the enhancement suggests that it 2 does not and was not intended to add additional punishment 3 to take the wire fraud into account, but rather that it was intended to recognize that [the defendant] may have underreported more income than the IRS detected.

4 Vucko, 473 F.3d at 779.

5 Second, the Seventh Circuit held that the tax and fraud counts 6 did not group under USSG § 3D1.2(c) because the offenses were not 7 "closely related" as required by the commentary to that guideline.
8 USSG § 3D1.2, comment. (n.5) ("Of course, this rule applies only if 9 the offenses are closely related."). The Vucko Court noted that the 10 fraud offense and tax offense "were two different crimes, causing two 11 different harms and harming two different victims [Vucko's employer 12 from whom the funds were embezzled, and the United States government 13 to whom false statements were made resulting in unpaid income 14 taxes]." Vucko, 473 F.3d at 779.

15 Finally, the Vucko Court explained that grouping the fraud and 16 tax counts "would seriously undercut the concept of 'incremental 17 punishment' that underlies both the grouping rules and the Guidelines 18 as a whole. The effect of grouping Vucko's offenses would be to 19 eliminate the marginal punishment for her second offense 20 There would be no increase at all for her additional crime" 26 § 994(i)(2) ["The [Sentencing] Commission shall assure that the 27 guidelines specify a sentence to a substantial term of imprisonment 28 for categories of defendants in which the defendant committed the offense as part of a pattern of criminal conduct from which the defendant derived a substantial portion of the defendant's income"]."

For similar reasons, the First,⁵ Second,⁶ Third,⁷ Fourth,⁸ Sixth,⁹ Tenth,¹⁰ and Eleventh¹¹ Circuits have also all rejected the argument that USSG § 3D1.2(c) requires grouping of tax and non-tax offenses.¹²

⁵ United States v. Martin, 363 F.3d 25, 41 (1st Cir. 2004) (vacating sentence and remanding based on district court's incorrect grouping of fraud and tax counts under USSG § 3D1.1(c)).

⁶ United States v. Gordon, 291 F.3d 181, 191-93 (2d Cir. 2002) (holding that grouping of fraud and tax counts under USSG § 3D1.2(c) was error, but holding that the counts did group under § 3D1.2(d)).

⁸ United States v. Morris, 229 F.3d 1145, 2000 WL 1260162 (4th Cir. 2000) (unpublished) (rejecting grouping of tax evasion and money laundering offenses; "The victims, harms, and conduct for the offenses of conviction were different. As a result, the offenses were not closely related and the grouping rule found in USSG § 3D1.2(c) did not apply.").

⁹ Weinberger v. United States, 268 F.3d 346, 352-55 (6th Cir. 2001) (rejecting grouping under USSG § 3D1.2(c) because the harms were not closely related).

¹⁰ United States v. Peterson, 312 F.3d 1300, 1302-04 (10th Cir. 2002) ("[T]ax evasion and mail fraud are not the same, the offenses involve distinct behaviors, the purposes of the enhancements are different, and the harms attributable to each crime are dissimilar. Accordingly, the district court correctly declined to group the tax evasion and mail fraud counts in this case.").

¹¹ United States v. Doxie, 813 F.3d 1340, 1345-48 (11th Cir. 2016).

¹² In one unpublished memorandum decision, the Ninth Circuit upheld grouping of tax and wire fraud convictions on the ground that one of the counts embodies conduct that is treated as a specific offense characteristic in, or other adjustment to, the guideline applicable to another of the counts, citing USSG § 3D1.2(c). United States v. Narum, 577 F. App'x. 689, 691 (9th Cir. 2014) (unpublished). In Narum, grouping would have increased the sentence: Narum had pled guilty to the tax counts but went to trial on the fraud counts, and the government argued and the court found that, because the offenses grouped and defendant had not pled guilty to all of the offenses in the group, he was not entitled to an adjustment for acceptance of responsibility.

The Fifth Circuit has also grouped mail fraud and tax evasion offenses based on USSG § 3D1.2(c), but it relied solely on the text

1 For all the reasons set forth in Vucko and the other cases cited 2 above, the offenses of conviction in the instant case should not be 3 grouped under USSG § 3D1.2(c). Defendant committed two different 4 crimes: embezzlement and filing a false tax return. Defendant caused 5 two different harms: stealing from his clients and failing to report 6 income to the IRS. Defendant harmed two different victims (his 7 clients and GSO on the one hand, and the government (IRS) on the 8 other hand), in two different amounts ($8,657,268 and $1,704,080).
9 See USSG § 3D1.2 Background ("A primary consideration is whether the 10 offenses involve different victims."). The necessary connection is 11 lacking between defendant's thefts from his clients and his cheating 12 the government by failing to report his ill-gotten income, and thus 13 the offenses are not closely related as is required for grouping 14 under USSG § 3D1.2(c).

15 Nor should the counts of conviction be grouped under USSG 16 § 3D1.2(d). Guideline § 3D1.2(d) provides for grouping of offenses 17 "[w]hen the offense level is determined largely on the basis of the 18 total amount of harm or loss, the quantity of a substance involved or 19 some other measure of aggregate harm." In United States v. Martin, 20 363 F.3d 25, 44 (1st Cir. 2004), the First Circuit rejected this 21 basis for grouping fraud offenses and tax offenses even though the 22 guidelines "require incremental enhancement based on the amount of 23 loss." The First Circuit explained that "[i]n addition to requiring 24 that the counts be based on the amount of harm or loss, grouping 25 under 3D1.2(d) also requires that the offenses be of 'the same 26 general type.'" Id. (citing USSG § 3D1.2 comment. (n.6)). The 27

28 of the specific provision and did not consider the commentary at all.
United States v. Haltom, 113 F.3d 43, 45-46 (5th Cir. 1997).

1 Martin Court, which had also rejected grouping under USSG § 3D1.2(c), 2 held that, for similar reasons, the fraud and tax offenses were "not 3 offenses of the same general type within the meaning of USSG § 3D1.2 4 comment. (n.6). . . . [The offenses] cause different harms to 5 different victims and require different conduct on the part of the 6 defendant." Id. As an additional reason, the Martin Court noted 7 that, "while the tables that set the offense levels both increase 8 with the amount of loss, they increase at different increments for 9 tax and fraud offenses. The different increments reflect the 10 different nature of the crimes, basing the offense level for the 11 fraud counts on the amount of loss to the victim and the offense 12 level for the tax evasion counts on the tax loss to the government."
 13 Id.

14 The Third,¹³ Sixth,¹⁴ Seventh,¹⁵ Eighth,¹⁶ Tenth,¹⁷ and Eleventh¹⁸
 15 Circuits all agree with this reasoning.¹⁹

16 7. Summary

17 For the reasons set forth above, the government submits that the 18 applicable advisory guidelines in this case are:

- 3 (acceptance of responsibility)

These guidelines result in a total offense level of 26 and an advisory sentencing guidelines range, based on Criminal History Category I, of 63 to 78 months.

B. Analysis of the § 3553(a) Factors

The factors to be considered when imposing sentence, as set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), include:

- (1) The nature and circumstances of the offense and the history and characteristics of the defendant;
- (2) The need for the sentence imposed -
 - (A) to reflect the seriousness of the offense, to promote respect for the law, and to provide just punishment for the offense;
 - (B) to afford adequate deterrence to criminal conduct; [and]
 - (C) to protect the public from further crimes of the defendant . . .
- (3) The kinds of sentences available;
- (4) [the applicable sentencing guidelines];
- (5) [the applicable sentencing guidelines policy statement];
- (6) The need to avoid unwarranted sentence disparities among defendants who have been found guilty of similar conduct; and
- (7) The need to provide restitution to the victims of the offense.

18 U.S.C. § 3553(a).

Factor 4 (the applicable sentencing guidelines) was discussed above. The remaining § 3553(a) factors are discussed below.

1 1. Nature and Circumstances of the Offense

2 Defendant's offense conduct lasted for seven years and resulted 3 in over $8.6 million in losses suffered by the victim-clients and the 4 business management firm of which he was a partner. The amount of 5 financial loss, however, does not capture the full extent of the harm 6 that defendant has caused. GSO's business is heavily dependent on 7 the trust that must exist between business managers like those at GSO 8 and the clients whose money they look after. That trust was 9 destroyed when defendant's betrayal of that trust was exposed. As a 10 result of this blow to GSO's reputation, which GSO's founder Bernard 11 Gudvi spent thirty years building, GSO lost existing business and 12 future business. GSO has had to lay off about a dozen employees, and 13 each of these out-of-work employees and their families are now 14 suffering from their loss of wages and benefits.

15 Defendant perpetrated his crimes by abusing the trust of his 16 clients and his business partners. In order to conceal his offenses 17 from his clients and his colleagues at GSO, defendant falsified the 18 very accounting records that were supposed to protect them. (E.g., 19 Exh. C.) In furtherance of his crimes of conviction, defendant also 20 committed other uncharged crimes including using other persons' 21 identifying information without their authorization (as when he 22 forged their signatures) and making false representations to City 23 National Bank (as when he obtained cash from clients' accounts under 24 false pretenses).²⁰

25 26 ²⁰ Defendant's conduct constitutes bank fraud even though the 27 ultimate loss was borne by the clients, not by the bank. See United 28 States v. McNeil, 320 F.3d 1034 (9th Cir. 2003) (affirming a § 1344 conviction, holding that liability for federal bank fraud should not turn on issues of state commercial law regarding which parties to a

Defendant's offense conduct only stopped after one of his victims discovered that money was missing from her account. Even after he was caught, defendant persisted in lying and blaming others in an effort to hide his crimes. When one victim asked about her apparent lack of funds, defendant told her it was because she spent too much on jewelry and family expenses. (See Katzenstein Dec. ¶ 6.) According to the Complaint filed by this victim-client, after the victim-client's new business manager confronted defendant about the missing funds, defendant falsely told the victim-client's new business manager that the large cash transfers were "not a problem," that the victim-client had signed a letter "acknowledging" each and every one of these withdrawals, and that defendant had "signed receipts" in "storage" for "at least seventy percent of them."²¹ Defendant also concealed his likely termination at GSO from the Banc of California ("BoC"), which enabled him to obtain a $250,000 loan from BoC on which he promptly defaulted.²² transaction ultimately bear the loss, and noting that "the scheme to deceive the bank was essential to [the defendant's] overall plan").

These are all aggravating factors.

²¹ [Client] v. GSO Business Management, LLC & Jonathan Schwartz, Complaint for Breach of Fiduciary Duty, Conversion, Fraud and Negligence, Case No. BC620393 (California Superior Court, Los Angeles); see also PSR ¶ 14.

²² Defendant obtained a $250,000 loan from Banc of California ("BoC") on August 21, 2015 (Loan No. 30171). The funds were disbursed to defendant and accounts controlled by defendant on August 24, 2015. Repayment of the loan was due on February 5, 2016. On April 25, 2016 - after being confronted by Client No. 2's new business manager about the missing funds - defendant obtained a new loan (Loan No. 30186) from BoC to pay off the first loan. In order to obtain this new loan, defendant maintained the pretense that he remained in good standing with GSO. The terms of the new loan required installment payments for $7,000 principal and interest on May 5, 2016 and June 5, 2016, and a final principal and interest payment of $236,873 on July 5, 2016. Defendant made none of these payments. (See Katzenstein Dec. ¶ 5; Exh. E.)

1 2. History and Characteristics of Defendant

2 Defendant is a 46-year-old United States citizen. (PSR ¶ 64.)
 3 He is well-educated and, since graduating from college, has worked in 4 high-paying jobs in the financial services industry. (PSR ¶¶ 85-87, 5 89-91.) By in or about April 2013, he was earning over $100,000 a 6 month. In 2010, he started Heartview Global Foundation, a charity 7 that helps pay for coronary CT angiograms. (PSR ¶ 92.) As defendant 8 himself has said, he "ha[d] it all."²³

9 a. Acceptance of Responsibility

10 Shortly after the government met with counsel for GSO as part of 11 its investigation, defendant's counsel informed the government that 12 defendant would admit his offense conduct and wanted to resolve his 13 case. Defendant signed a plea agreement and entered his guilty pleas 14 as contemplated by the agreement. This conduct reflects defendant's 15 acceptance of responsibility and is a mitigating factor.²⁴ It should 16 be noted, however, that defendant admitted his conduct only after the 17 government was already aware of it and in possession of sufficient 18 evidence to establish defendant's guilt.

23 ²³ Guest Column by defendant, published in The Hollywood Reporter 24 on April 11, 2017, available at 25 <https://www.yahoo.com/music/hollywood-business-manager-stole-alanis-morissette-other-clients-134208091.html>

26 ²⁴ Although defendant's plea agreement did not include 27 cooperation provisions, defendant requested the opportunity to 28 provide information to the government that might be a basis for a downward departure under USSG § 5K1.1. The government met with defendant for this purpose on two occasions. The information defendant provided was not useful within the meaning of the guidelines.

1 b. The Court should reject any request by defendant
2 for a variance based on his purported gambling
3 and drug addictions

4 On April 11, 2017, defendant published a "Guest Column" in the 5 Hollywood Reporter in which he stated that he committed his crimes 6 because he has been a "gambling addict" since college. Defendant 7 also told the Probation Officer that he became "addicted" to gambling 8 in college and, after stopping during his sophomore year, began 9 gambling again in 2009. (PSR ¶ 78.) Defendant presumably will 10 request a downward variance based on his supposed gambling addiction.

11 To date, defendant has provided no evidence that he suffers from 12 a gambling addiction other than the fact that he gambles. There is 13 no evidence that defendant's gambling was pathological, compulsive, 14 or beyond his control in a way that mitigates his guilt for stealing 15 the money he wagered. The Probation Officer noted that defendant 16 "has not provided documentation of his psychiatric conditions other 17 than letters confirming his treatment." (PSR ¶ 80.)

18 Indeed, defendant's own description of what happened proves that 19 he was not operating under a gambling addiction:

20 At first, I "borrowed" a little from clients, with the 21 hopes that I would pay them back if I won that night's bet.
22 That snowballed, and as I kept losing, I kept stealing. I 23 kept telling myself that I just needed one lucky break, and 24 I'll pay them back. That lucky break never came

25 (Guest Column (see n.23 above).) By his own account, defendant 26 committed his offense in the same way many Ponzi-schemers and other 27 fraud defendants do - "borrowing" or investing a little money 28 obtained from clients or business partners to take advantage of a 29 business "opportunity," and then getting in deeper and deeper when 30 the "opportunity" doesn't pan out and the money can't immediately be 31 repaid.

1 Moreover, it is clear that defendant was sufficiently able to 2 control his desire to gamble such that he did not compromise his 3 ability to live in a 5-bedroom, 5-bath, 4661-square foot home in 4 Agoura Hills valued at $1.9 million (PSR ¶¶ 93, 97); maintain over 5 $121,000 in a 401(k) account (PSR ¶ 93); lend $53,000 to two 6 associates (id.); and take vacations to resort locations such as Bora 7 Bora and the Cayman Islands (PSR ¶ 19). Cf. United States v.
8 Dikiara, 50 F. Supp. 3d 1029, 1032 (E.D. Wis. 2014) (finding a 9 gambling addiction where “[v]irtually all of the [embezzled] money 10 went to the casino” and Dikiara’s gambling caused her to lose “not 11 just the proceeds of the crime but also [Dikiara] and her husband’s 12 savings”).

13 In sum, defendant chose to spend some of the proceeds of his 14 embezzlement on gambling. He is no different than other defendants 15 who spend the proceeds of their crimes according to their own 16 pleasure, choosing for instance to buy high-end real estate, fancy 17 cars or luxury consumer goods. There is simply no evidence that 18 defendant’s gambling was anything other than a choice; there is no 19 evidence that defendant suffered from such a compulsion to gamble 20 that his stealing to pay for his gambling activities should be 21 excused.

22 Defendant blames his gambling addiction for his crimes, but this 23 is nothing more than posturing for sentencing. During the seven 24 years that defendant embezzled money, he never sought professional 25 help nor even asked his colleagues, friends, or family for help with 26 his supposed “addiction.” When his thefts came to light, he did not 27 explain that they were beyond his control because he was addicted to 28 gambling. To the contrary, he lied, cast blame on others, and tried

1 to hide his crimes. When and if defendant seeks a variance based on 2 his purported gambling addiction, it should be denied.

3 3. Goals of Sentencing

4 Given defendant's acceptance of responsibility and the publicity 5 surrounding his case, he is unlikely to reoffend and therefore the 6 need to protect the public from further crimes by defendant himself 7 is low. However, that is just one of the goals of sentencing set out 8 in § 3553(a)(2). That section also requires this Court to fashion a 9 sentence that reflects the seriousness of the offense, promotes 10 respect for the law, provides just punishment for the offense, and 11 affords adequate general deterrence to criminal conduct.

12 These additional goals of sentencing support a significant term 13 of incarceration in this case. Defendant's offense was serious, 14 resulting in substantial financial harm to his victims and serious 15 collateral consequences to the GSO firm and its employees. The need 16 for general deterrence is also pronounced in order to discourage 17 unscrupulous employees in business management positions from taking 18 advantage of their clients, who rely on the honesty of the financial 19 managers they hire.

20 The importance of these goals of sentencing, and the need for a 21 significant term of incarceration to serve these goals, is especially 22 pronounced in this case, as the letter from Bernard Gudvi, the 23 founding partner of GSO, makes clear. Mr. Gudvi writes:

24 The impact of the defendant's betrayal has been felt beyond 25 my firm. . . . [T]rust is the bedrock of our industry. A 26 business manager is given tremendous power and 27 responsibility over his or her client's assets. It is only 28 through the reinforcement of that trust, day in and day out, that we are able to serve our clients' best interests.
When reports surface that there has been a breach in this trust, it doesn't just hurt the person responsible, or even that person's firm. I have spoken with numerous colleagues

1 in the business management industry, and the message has 2 been clear: The defendant's actions hurt all of us. The 3 critical bonds of trust that we require to do our jobs have 4 been strained; clients now have reason to second-guess our motives even in the absence of evidence that should cause them concern; and the entire industry I serve in has been tainted by the defendant's actions.

6 C. Government's Sentencing Recommendation

7 As explained above, the government maintains that defendant's 8 properly calculated post-acceptance advisory guideline offense level 9 is 26. The government respectfully submits that a sentence at the 10 low end of the applicable advisory sentencing guidelines range, 11 namely 63 months, appropriately balances the mitigating and 12 aggravating factors in this case.
